GREAT WHITE SHARK
The great white shark rolls its eyes back into its head to protect them when it opens its mouth to attack its prey.
Sharks have many rows of teeth. As the front teeth wear out from biting prey the ones behind take their place. A shark can lose thousands of teeth during its life.
They have sharp teeth.
Ingredient in a delicacy called shark fin soup.

WHITE TIP SHARK
Sharks have lived in the Earth's oceans for more than 400 million years. They are perfectly suited to their ocean environment.

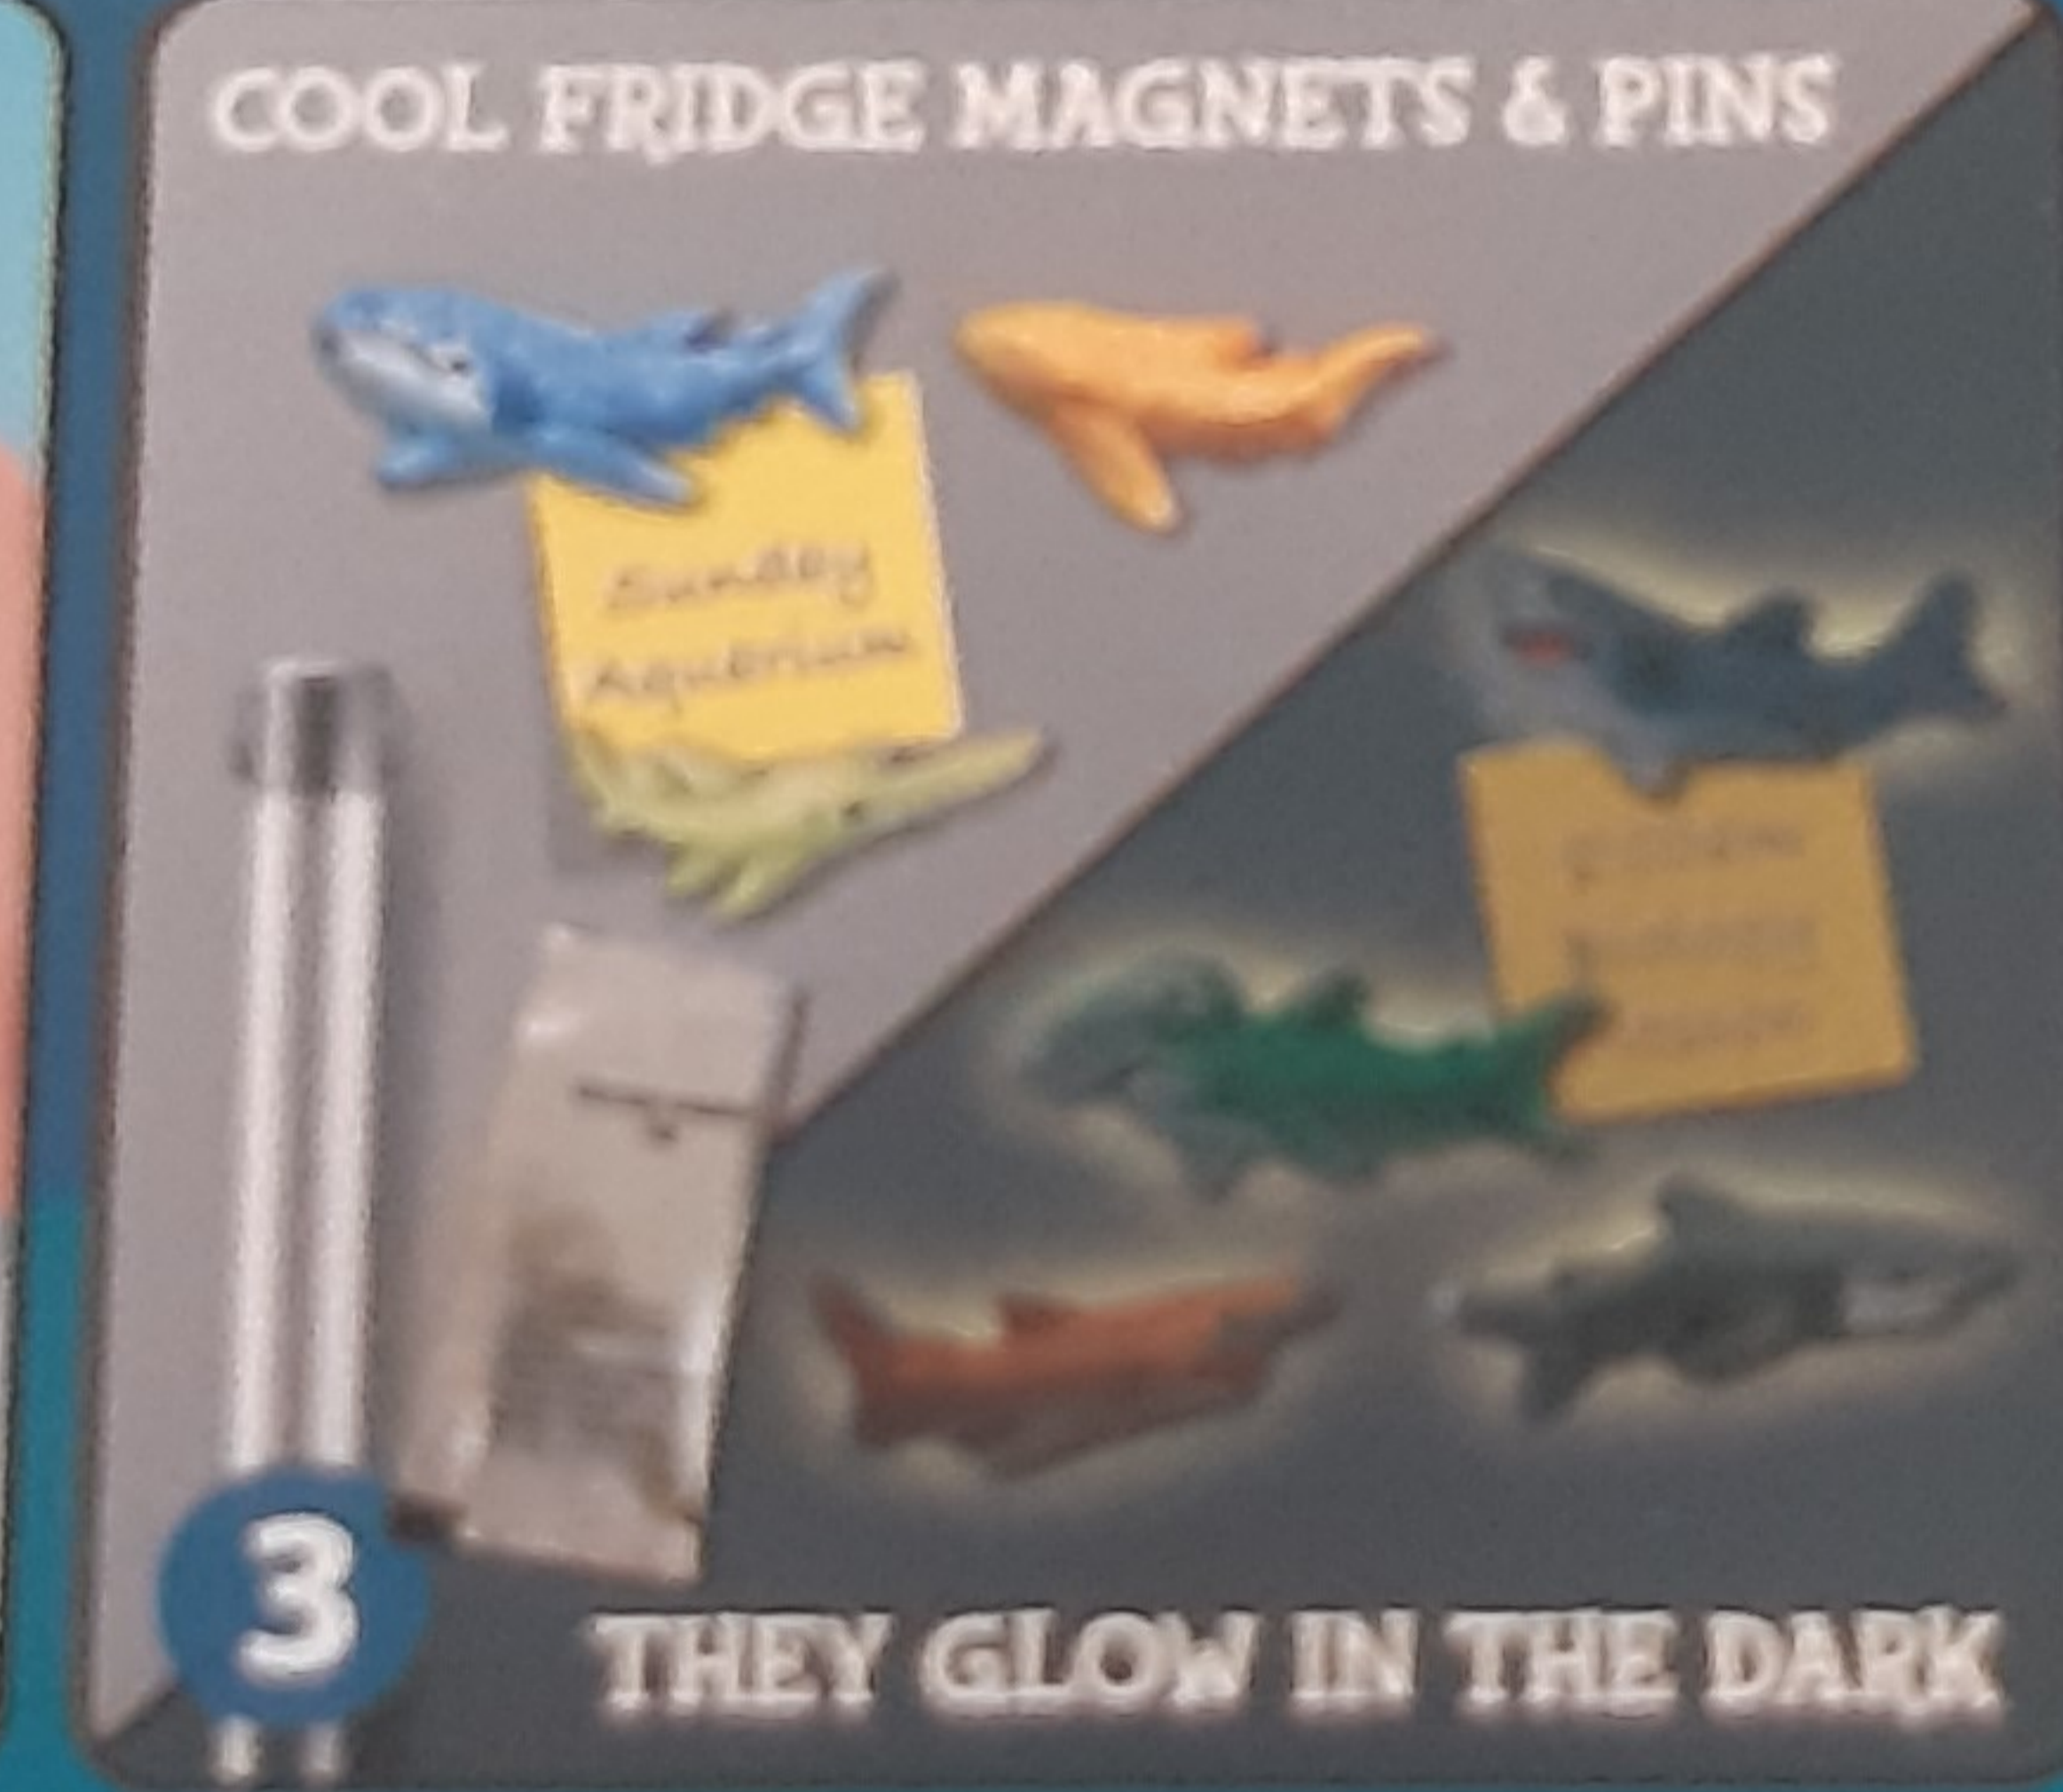

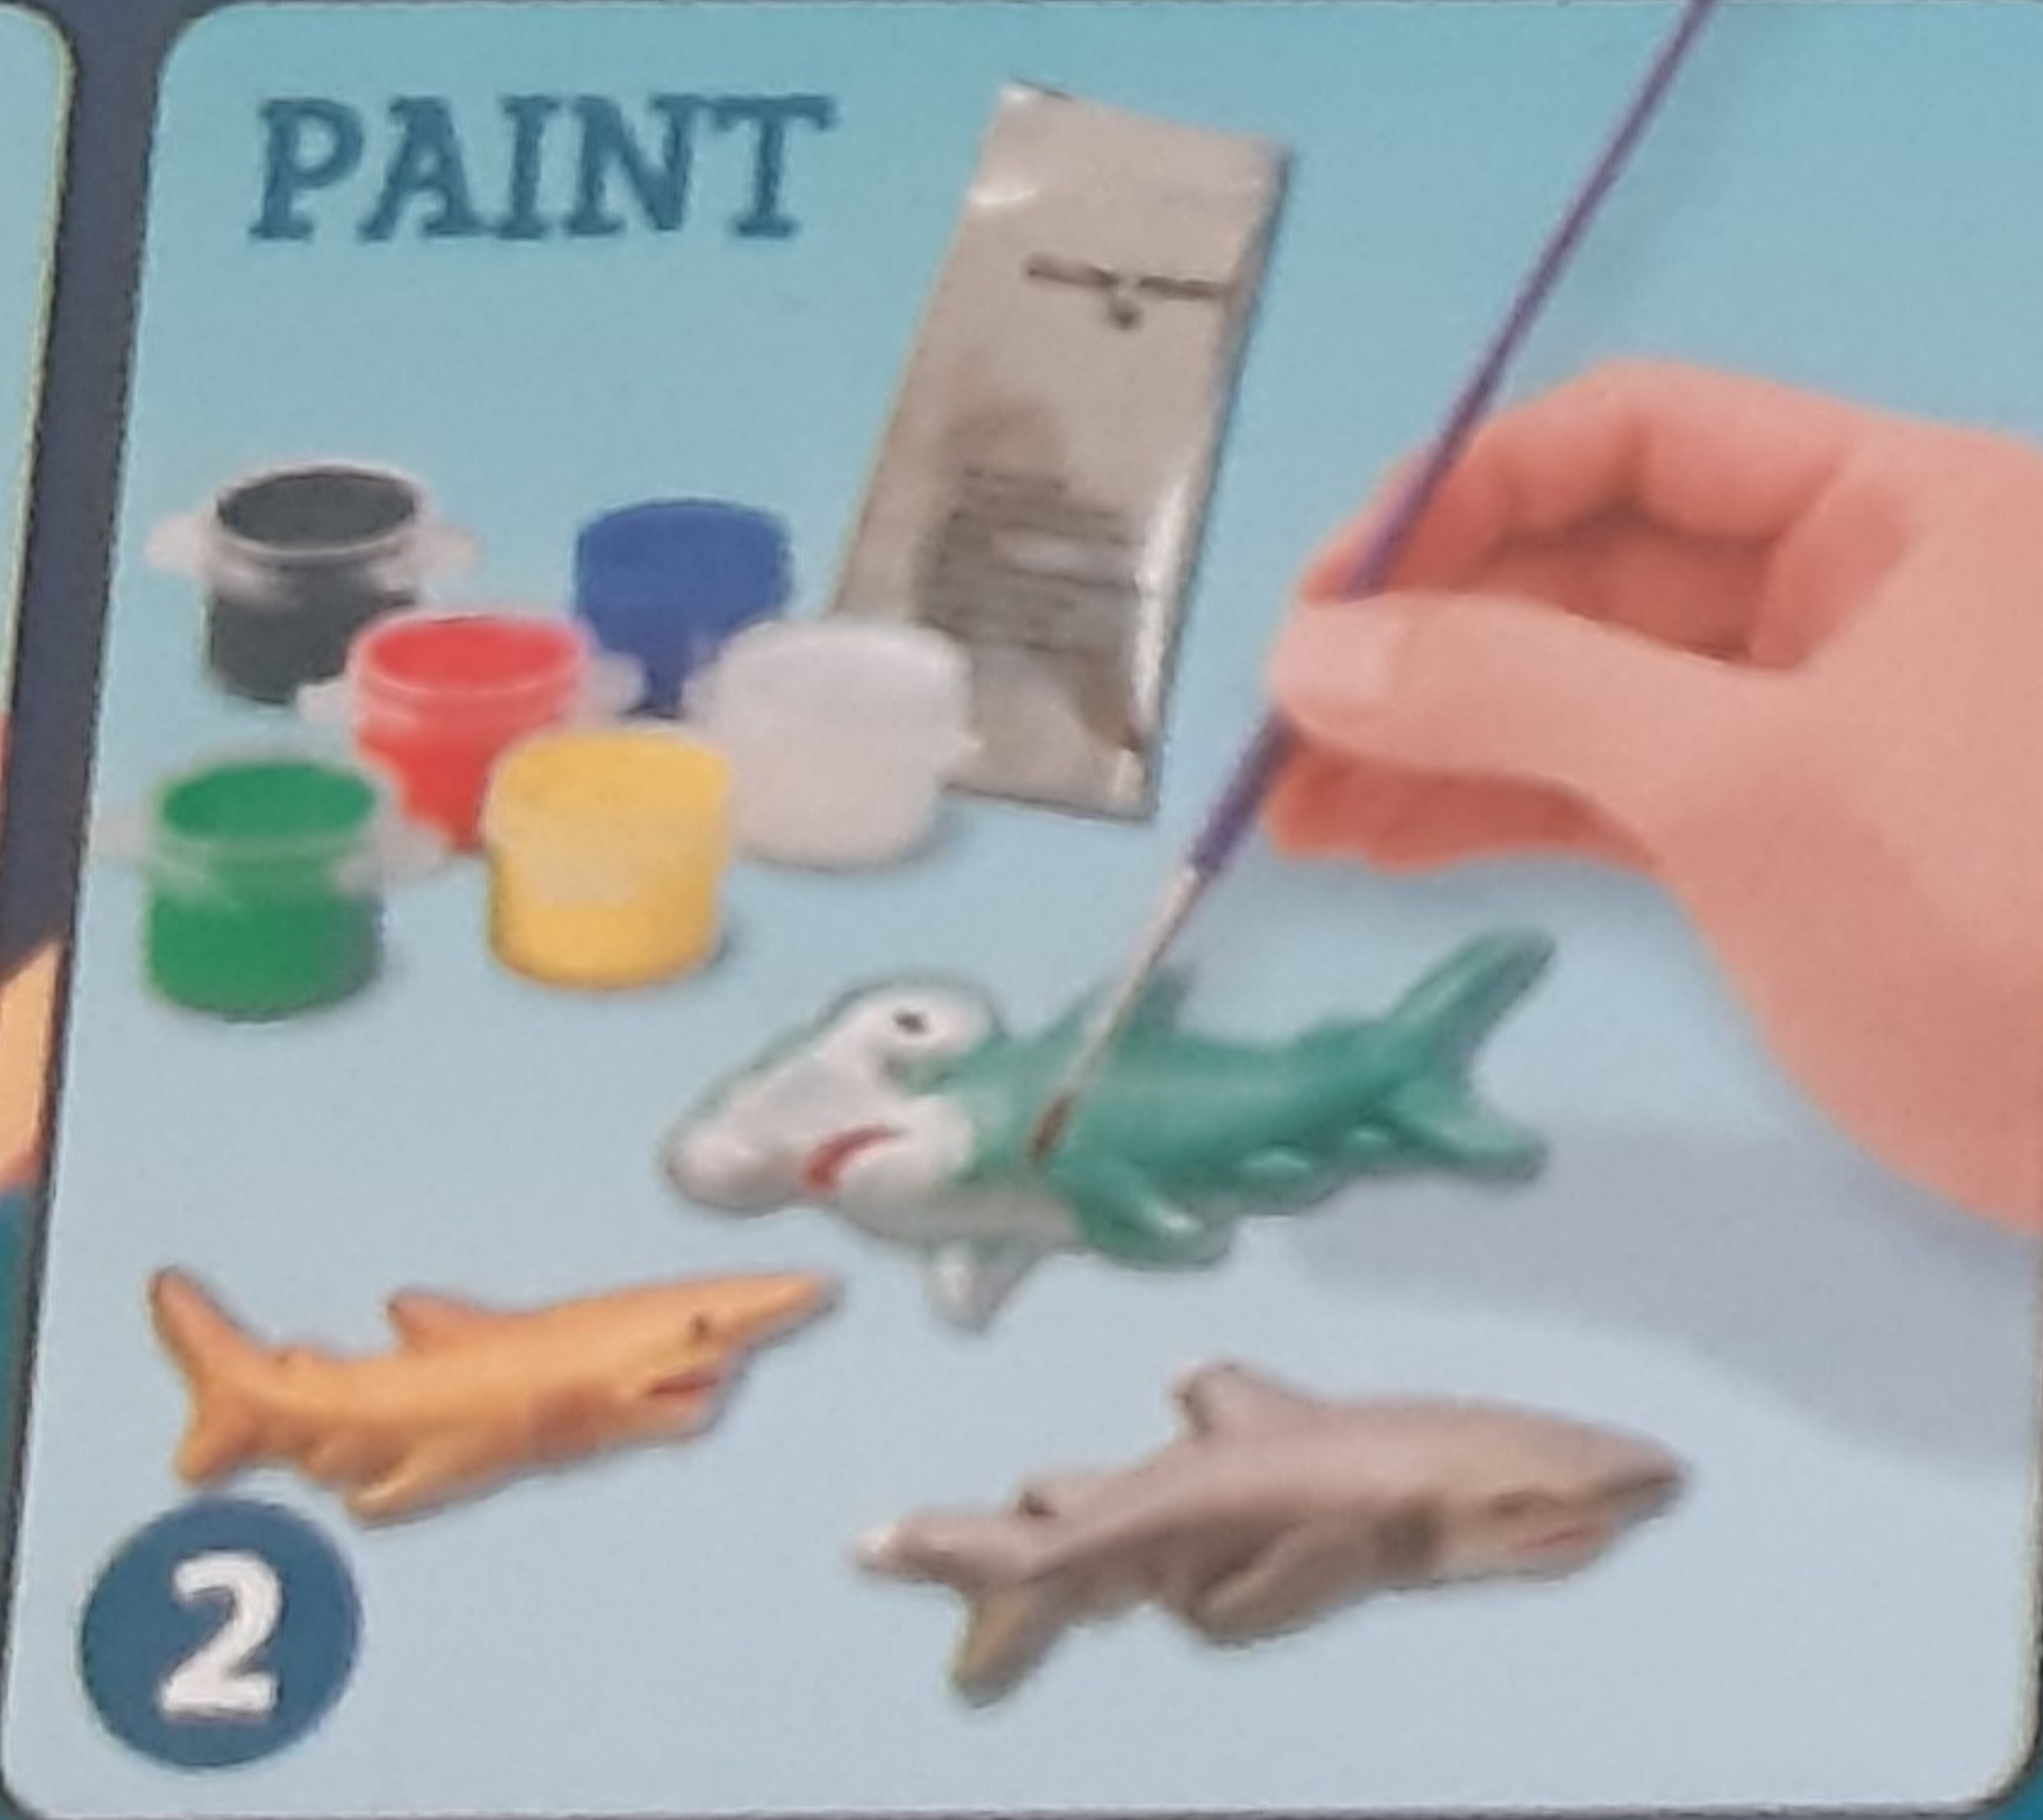

WHALE SHARK
Sharks have an amazing sense of smell. They can detect a single drop of blood in a million drops of water.

LEOPARD SHARK
The leopard shark has a patterned head.

GOBLIN SHARK
The goblin shark has a protruding snout.

HAMMERHEAD SHARK
The hammerhead shark has a flattened head shaped like a double-ended hammer with a ridge on each side. This gives the shark almost 360 degrees of vision.

SAWFISH
Sharks can detect the Earth's magnetic field. This allows them to navigate long distances and find their way home.
